

Pricing

I aim to keep pricing straightforward and fair. Most work is quoted as a fixed price per document, with a clear scope and agreed number of revision cycles before I start.

Pricing structure and ranges shown are indicative and will apply once services are launched.

Fixed price per document

All prices shown are indicative and exclusive of applicable taxes.

Each fixed price normally includes:

- Initial technical review of the full document.
- Checks against applicable EN/TSI, contract requirements, and any additional standards or reference documents defined for the review.
- Documented findings and review comments in the agreed format (for example, client template, annotated copy for review, or summary report).
- Up to two revision cycles of the same document.

Typical price ranges (per document, EUR):

Pages	Typical range*
30–100	from 1,800 €
101–250	from 3,200 €
251–500	from 5,500 €

*The exact price depends on how complex the document is. For example, documents with a high share of diagrams, detailed technical calculations, or extensive cross-references to other documents take longer to review. If I need to review substantial additional supporting material (such as related reports or specifications) in order to complete the review of the main document, this may increase the fee. Any adjustment is always discussed and agreed in writing before I start.

Extra revisions / out-of-scope work

If more work is needed beyond the agreed scope (for example, additional revision cycles, major document revisions, or new sections added later), I use a straightforward hourly rate:

Additional work: 120 € per hour (only after we agree in writing on scope and estimate).

Ongoing or multi-document projects

For projects with a continuous stream of documents — such as full sets of O&M manuals, training material, or repeated design updates — I can offer a simple monthly or multi-document arrangement. This can provide predictable costs, priority handling, and a clear review schedule aligned with your project phases.

How we start

1. You send a short description of the document plus a table of contents and a few sample pages (redacted is fine).
2. I review the material and send you a written fixed-price quote and proposed timeline, usually within 1–2 working days.
3. Once you approve the quote, I start the review and keep you informed of progress.

Information required to start a review

To carry out a meaningful and defensible review, the applicable contract requirements, referenced standards, and any other documents that define the review basis need to be available and agreed before the review starts. This is clarified together during the initial scoping step.

Full terms and conditions, including payment terms and liability, are provided with each proposal.
